

Chat record

GS: Greetings from Devon

MH: Good morning from sunny Belgium! 📅 Happy to be here with you.

MH: Already so inspiring.

MH: Congrats to Geoff and his team, impressive videos!

MH: Lidar is now available on newer iPhones and iPads.

MH: Many thanks Geoff!

KH: Good morning from Scotland

OM: Really fantastic video, thank you so much!!

YP: Good morning from Normandy, France

YP: Subtitle for the mandarin will be good

YP: Great, thanks!

YP: I posted a question, but it didn't show up, should I send it again?

YP: Ok, thanks Debbie

YP: Great work, thank you, applause!

SG: Good morning from sunny Calvados France!

Pv: Good morning / day everyone from the south of The Netherlands! Have a great symposium!

Mv: Good Morning from Nijmegen, the Netherlands

Mv: thank you both!

JB: Good morning from sunny Kent :)

JB: Applause. Inspiring, thank you Geoff.

JB: Question. There is a big movement and interest to plant more trees to mitigate climate change. How could this be a way to engage in future food forests?

CD: Good morning from the sunny Netherlands!

HD: Debbie, some of the delegates this week are journalists for publications such as The Guardian.

HD: Hi Marie-Anne, the streams, including the Q+A, will be available from today for 30 days for you to watch back

HD: 30 days on this platform and website. We are in conversations with Agroforestry Research Trust will be taking over the content, so it will be available through them.

HD: All streams from the event will be held on this platform for 30 days, and then on ART for a further five months for you to watch back. This includes the Q&A sessions.

HD: Head back to the programme tab to access the next session: Maximising carbon storage in food forests and live Q&A, starting shortly.

PV: Hello from the Netherlands next to a chestnut tree!

MH: Good morning from Hamburg, Germany!

MH: Why is this not a documentary on Netflix? XD

MH: That was not Chinese.

MH: They are around Petra and the Jordan desert. A country neighbouring Israel.

MH: Ah!

MH: the Q&A videos will be recorded and also available after the event?

MH: 30 days? I thought it was mentioned 6 months

MH: Ah, understood. Thank you.

MH: Link to next talk, seems they all have to be clicked on from the PROGRAMME section:

Chat record

MH: <https://crowdcomms.com/aifgff/modules/82943/agenda/session/261805>

TB: Good morning from a sunny Utrecht in the Netherlands ! Enjoy the symposium everyone , make it an inspiring one !

TB: Thank you very much Geoff for the inspiration and your pioneers work !!!

AA: Good morning everyone from Cornwall, England!

AA: Thank you!7

JF: Good morning from rather grey Berkshire.

JS: Good morning from exceptionally sunny Berlin

GN: Good morning from near Christchurch, Dorset, England, it's lovely sunshine here too.

SD: Good morning from Belgium as well

LD: Goodmorning everyone :-) Lovely to see so many people. Greetings from Food Forest Institute, Belgium

LD: Congrats! Applause! Thanks :-)

JH: Bit late to the party, howdy from Effingham in Surrey (UK) but normally London. Very excited to be here!

Kv: Hi from Malden, The Netherlands!

SH: Good morning from Belgium

SH: Wonderfully inspiring !

LB: they mixed in some parts of a documentary on the Loess plateau

LB: hurray Belgium! ;)

LB: @bert: in de Q&A zetten

DH: I have no subtitles for the Chinese speaking people

DH: Q: How can we get a Hydro Strobing map for an area? What a wonderful tool for design.

MO: Goodmorning from The Netherlands!

MO: GREAT footage, superpleasant voice, promising start.

MO: Well, they are now!

HE: Good morning from Eetbos Deinze, Belgium

ES: Good morning! Please post any questions in the Q&A box which is next to the chat. Q&A will be answered live after the presentation has finished.

ES: Please copy any questions into the Q&A box (next to the chat box), thank you

KB: so people only believe when they SEE it...

ME: Good morning from not so sunny yet Holland!!!

AR: good morning everybody, greetings from Jos and Alide

PG: hello.... it's great that the symposium has finally started, Pipher

RS: Good morning from Berlin

RS: @marie-anne hachey: would be interesting to connect. see waldgartenprojekt.de for infos

MF: Good morning :D

DH: Good morning from sunny Suffolk UK!

DH: Please will you make sure govts see this video!!!

DH: I think we got the idea that they weren't happy!

DH: @event support do you have mainstream media covering this symposium?

DH: @help desk Excellent!!

Chat record

DH: @Yvonne Pang, so did I, it took a while to appear

RP: Good morning from the Lake District! (UK)

RP: Does that ratio (95% to 5%) apply to temperate climates like in Britain?

AM: Good morning from Waakirchen, Germany

Pv: Good morning from misty Overijssel, Netherlands

KF: Good morning from Czech Republic.

JR: Hello all, from NE Scotland

JR: We're keeping goats within our agroforestry systems here in Scotland, a challenge, but certainly possible.

JM: Good morning from The Netherlands!

JM: Loss is great soil :)

JP: Good morning from Switzerland !!

LB: Greetings from sunny central Italy! Super excited!

RP: Morning from foggy London!

BH: Good morning everyone

BH: How does your experience of using GIS data compare when presented with local knowledge? Does it show any interesting comparisons or conflicts with people who have lived and worked the land?

LM: Good morning from near Berwick upn Tweed

KS: Hello from Denmark.

ns: Good Morning from Amsterdam!

EE: Good morning from Cornwall

EE: What software do you use for mapping designs?

Dv: Hey everyone, from Zeeland, NL! Weather is way too good to be sitting behind a computer... :-)

Dv: @Robbie Felix Penman: You can post your question on the Q&A tab so Geoff can answer it at the end of his presentation (and others can vote on it).

EV: Good morning form Amersfoort, The Netherlands!

AT: Good morning from Bordeaux !

EW: It's sunny in Manchester! :) Hi everyone, I'm very happy to be here!

CB: Hi all from a cool winter evening in Melbourne Australia

JP: Morning all - very excited to be signing in from our field in mid Cornwall :-)

HK: @Marie-anne this is from <https://www.vpro.nl/programmas/tegenlicht/kijk/afleveringen/2011-2012/groen-goud.html>

aP: Good Morning and a Great Start from Koycegiz, Turkey.

MC: @Han Kop only this part about the Loess Plateau

JM: Good morning from Norway! Super excited for the symposium!

NK: Did they reproduced that elsewhere in shuch a big scale?If not why?

LD: Great video and start of this symposium!

MM: That was an amazing talk, thank you

MM: Geoff, when you started out, what was your first project, after training? And did it work out s you hoped?

JS: Hello from south-west France - a great start, thank you!!

Chat record

FG: The increasing of fertility in the soil, how much difference in restoration time can you expect in different soils? For example sand versus löss.

BR: Great start, very inspiring talk, thanks! What role do you see for policy actors to move in the right direction at greater scale? Probably also an "it depends" question, but what to do to get them convinced?

KD: Inspiring

CM: Thanks Martin and Geoff, Great start

TA: Thanks

MR: Legend 🙌

DL: Thanks Geoff. Finished the PDC earlier this year and great to hear about all the work scaling up permaculture - love the idea of 70% forested cities!